

How To

Welcome to the library's Storyboxing. This Adventure will take a little imagination and a lot of looking.

Here in your hands you have the story but before you read it all, you must first follow the clues to find the "key" to each part hidden somewhere on the library grounds.

This is what you're looking for!

Once you've found the key, stamp the small circles on your pamphlet to unlock each part of the story. Remember to return the key and close the key container.

Happy Adventures!

We recommend that you start your story by going out the front door to the right around the front of the building to the side yard. If you have any questions, stop inside the library and ask a librarian.

You will need a stamp pad (if you didn't bring your own stop in the library to pick one up).

Bear's Day Out

A Storyboxing Adventure

Clue 1:
Find the sometimes street waterfall, look along the barrier that keeps you safe.

Bear awoke early one morning. After looking out his den he decided it was so beautiful out that he'd spend the whole day out and about.

Tired of being wet and with his tummy rumbling, Bear set out up the mountain path in search of something else to eat. He soon came upon a blueberry patch. Bear sat right down in the middle and began to eat every berry within reach.

Clue 3:
Open ... Close ...
Open or close, you'll have to go through to find the key.

Clue 5:
Look along the fence that is different from all the others.

After a nap in a shady part of a meadow, Bear was hungry and he was in luck, for he could hear buzzing. Bear knew where there was buzzing there was honey! It wasn't long until he found an old log filled with honeycombs. It was a good thing Bear didn't mind bees, for the honey was deeeeelicious!

Clue 2:
Search along the tall fence that corrals the giant machines.

Bear's first stop was his favorite fishing spot on the river. The water was cold but clear and Bear could see the fish swimming. Try as he might he just couldn't catch one.

Clue 4:
Look among the flowering plants just don't step on the blooms.

With his belly full, Bear decided to find a place to nap. In his favorite clearing he found an unusual object that was flimsy and tore easily, and it wasn't comfortable to sleep on. Bear decided to move on when he heard human voices.

Clue 6:
It might not be a star but it will twinkle at night and light your way.

By now the sky was growing dark, so Bear headed home to his den. It had been a good day. As he laid down, he gazed up at the sky to see the stars shining brightly and as he drifted off to sleep, thought "Tomorrow, I'll catch some fish."
